Bioagricultural sciences, Nagoya University	Vietnam	My main reason to participate in this program is that I would like to join together with my son to meet professors and international students, enjoy the beautiful autumn scenery in Japan, and watch the multicultural performances at the event. I believe this will be a meaningful opportunity for both of us to learn, connect, and experience a welcoming international community.	I was most impressed by the multicultural performances. The energy, creativity, and diversity presented on stage made the event truly memorable. It was wonderful to see Japanese cultures and students from different countries sharing their cultures in such a lively and inspiring way.

What impressed me the most was the performance. The traditional Japanese instruments and hand drums were unforgettable, and the Japanese folk song has a peaceful atmosphere. The Vietnamese zither was also remarkable. The event allowed me to experience a wider range of cultures and meet confident, inspiring people, it was truly exciting!

GSID, Nagoya University	Vietnam	I want to enjoy the various traditional performances of nearby neighboring SEA countries. Also, I'd love to enjoy the okonomiyaki while chatting with other friends, enjoy the last days of autumn.	While it was fortunate to enjoy the momiji at Yokiso before the season changed, what I love most is the traditional performances by our guests and friends. It was interesting to learn about both the differences and similarities between our neighboring countries. At the same time, the performance by the Japanese guests helped me realize how the Japanese appreciate and respect different cultures, both foreign and their own values. Finally, the okonomiyaki is a warm and fulfilling experience, where we can enjoy tasty food while chatting with our friends. In summary, it was a very memorable event to end the year.
